love it

. I am more than happy to donate $10 to thank the Lag Studios team for creating one of the most entertaining and unique indie horror games in YEARS! The music is addictive and the wallpapers are awesome! Highly recommended for anyone who enjoyed the game even half as much as I did. ^_^ Definitely not worth the \u20ac10,=. You get barely anything and the things you do get are probably better off used in parallax mapping.. I LOVE this. Its small, its inexpensive, and I've spent LOTS of time in the fireworks area. I have no idea why it says I've only been in for .7 hours...I easily have been in watching just the fireworks longer than that.

The woods..I had fun crawling on the ground through the plants...I'm sure I looked like an idiot in RL..whatever.

The cabin...sitting in there is easy to forget I live in the city while watching the rain on the windows.

The mountain...I rather liked sitting on the edge and looking down...I have a fan blowing on me..added to the illusion..again, probably looked like an idiot...

The lobby...surreal. laid down on my floor and just watched the orbs for a bit. Might try drinking and going into this place.

The fireworks....I absolutely love being able to control the shells. That being said, one of the shells bogs my machine down...I'd love to see it optimized. I've got a GTX980ti, 16G RAM and I5 6700.. Can we please get a stable American/ Western Server... $25 and cant even get past the enitial loading screen... The game looks awesome, make it more available to those who pay for it... thats marketing 101. Not bad, your store page could use more info however, like that it's a rouglike runner game overall the biggest complaint is that theres no music in the game which weighs on me after a while anyway it's got good platforming and its quite nicely animated so if your looking for a timekiller you could do much worse . I am not able to play it

I can play all others but not the African kingdoms

So I know I would love it but since it will not play on my computer

I feel I was jipped

however if you can play it I would recommend it

Very cool hillclimb racing game ! Tracks are well designed, and some of them are really challenging. I love those pretty vintage cars ! i can only recomand , a lot of fun for such low price !. Not entirely a throwback. And the snow stage from RE6 is quite laggy too.. The soundtrack is amazing. The game play is fast and furious. There's value in both aggression and in stealth. The brutality has nuance. There's some quietly dark details if you pause and focus. The generated levels have logic and structure, but variety. Thank you!. i slapped the enemy in the butt. I picked this up when it was .54 cents and I have really been enjoying the game so far. It is a nice change of pace from stressful games, with a high difficulty level. It is not perfect as many other reviews will tell you, but it is an experience that you will not find very often. The music is great, and the environments are beautiful. I definitely recommend Sparkle 3 Genesis, especially if you are able to get it on sale.. Huh. For a free game I'm actually thoroughly impressed. I picked this up thinking it would be the dumb usual shovelware for Vive, but considering it's free, it's not bad. Having taken only 15 minutes to beat, I definitely wouldn't pay more than 2$ for it. However, the gameplay is surprisingly solid enough that if it were more than an hour long, I'd actually pay upwards of 5-10$ or so for it, which really isn't bad. The game runs remarkably smoothly compared to many worse-looking VR titles, the action is nice and responsive, and I felt immersed in the action.

The game plays almost exactly like a classic arcade shooter. And I don't mean "arcade" like a steam "arcade" game- I mean this actually feels like one of the classic rail shooters that you play with friends at an arcade, paying tokens and being rewarded tickets. Surprisingly, very (VERY) few VR games actually take advantage of this type of game mechanic, clearly making the false assumption that it's not worth making it less immersive. The action makes you feel badass enough that it's borderline silly (similar to arcades- as long as you have good aim, you can see all the opponents collapse in almost an instant). Between the aesthetics, music, and action, this game feels exactly like a traditionalistic early 1980's sci-fi classic vibe.

There are only two cons that I'd say are substantial:

1. There are things that appear as fun, intimidating boss battles, of two kinds: A giant exosuit, and a powerful shielded knight. Apparently, the giant exosuit isn't implemented in the game yet, since shooting it immediately brings you to the next area without any fight. Although the shield knights would otherwise be badass, they go down in almost a single hit.
2. The reloading system feels a bit dumb. It's interesting- when you run out of ammo, a clip automatically appears in your non-dominant hand and you have to slap it into the gun. This actually feels pretty cool. However, seeing as how bare-bones it is, I'd rather just press a button. I like it when vive games let you use only one controller. In this game, you need to use the second controller, but solely for this one purpose that isn't even necessary.

Overall, I've gone on too long seeing as this is a free game. I'd say it's 1000% worth downloading and playing. It's not spam, and I promise that it actually gave me a wholeheartedly FUN experience for a solid 20 minutes or so. It doesn't even take up too much disc space.. Very good DLC. It adds lots of new content and depth to the game, and customization never seen before in Beat Hazard! I highly recommend you pick it up.
